

Diane Hirshberg, Professor of Education Policy at the Institute of Social and Economic Research, the University of Alaska Anchorage (UAA), and director of the UAA Center for Alaska Education Policy Research. Diane's research interests include education policy analysis, indigenous education, circumpolar education issues, and school change. She has served or is currently evaluator for a number of federally funded education reform initiatives in Alaska and beyond, and currently is the North America's lead for the Arctic Youth-Sustainable Futures project, funded by the Nordic Council of Ministers. She also is a member of the "visionary group" for the Advancing Native Dialogues on Racial Equity project with the First Alaskans Institute. Further, Diane sits on both the International Arctic Social Sciences Association Council and the Arctic Research Consortium of the United States (ARCUS) Board.

Selected publications:

- Tetpon, B., Hirshberg, D., Leary, A. & Hill, A. (2015). Alaska Native-focused Teacher Preparation Programs: What have we learned? Alaska Native Studies Journal (2).88-100.
- Hirshberg, D. & Petrov, A. N. (2015). Education and Human Capital. In Larson, J and Fondahl, G. (eds.) Arctic Human Development Report: Regional Processes and Global Linkages. Copenhagen: Nordic Council of Ministers.
- Hirshberg, D. and Hill, A. (2014). Indigenous Self-Determination in Education in Alaska: How Can Communities Get There? Alaska Native Studies Journal (1) 96-122.
- Burke, T., Smith, T.P. & Hirshberg, D. (2012). Theory Matters: Articulating a Theoretical Framework for a Civic Engagement Program. In Butin, D. W. and Seider, S. (eds.) The Engaged Campus: Certificates, Minors and Majors as the New Community Engagement. New York: Palgrave Macmillan.

More information, e.g.: <http://www.iser.uaa.alaska.edu/CAEPR/>